1) The existing rules contain ample provision for dealing with fraudulent sale of adulterated ghee. Legal standards for ghee have been prescribed and the article also finds a place in the schedule of fees laid down for examination of samples for adulteration. Further the term "MILK PRODUCTS" occurring in rule 1 and 2 is sufficiently comprehensive and must be taken to include ghee also. The purpose of the proposed amendment is therefore not quite clear to me - unless it be to waive the license fee of rupees five leviable under rule 2 (i) for making ghee for sale and for selling it. I take it that this is so. The question seems to be one of the willingness of the Sanitary Board to forego some little income - in order probably not to embarass the local production of ghee.
